Royal Society Publishing Photography Competition 2024

The Royal Society Publishing Photography Competition highlights the power of photography in capturing the scientific phenomena around us, and the role great images play in making science accessible to a wide audience. We are thrilled to announce that this year's competition will be held in collaboration with the Royal Photographic Society.

The competition is now open to entries until August 23, 2024. Participants have the chance to win an overall prize of £1,000, a full Article Processing Charge (APC) waiver, and the opportunity to be featured on the cover of a Royal Society journal. All category winners will receive a certificate from the Royal Photographic Society and a one-year Royal Photographic Society Membership.
